

Abraham and the Idols (Dramatized)

An old and mysterious legend was told thousands of years ago about Abraham of the Bible. It seems that his father was a seller of idols and statues. People bought those idols and statues as a way of warding off evil and pleasing the gods. But Abraham, even as a child, did not believe that those statues had any power at all. Then, one night, after his father asks Abraham to watch the storehouse of statues, something strange happens. What happens teaches Abraham a lesson about life and starts him on a life-long journey. The biblical story of Abraham and the idols is presented in a fresh and vital manner in this unique straight-to-audio dramatization, complete with sound effects.
